

Ask Drastic Increase In Bond Buying

Prefer Not To Use Force; Want Volunteer Buyers

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau said today the treasury plans to “ring every doorbell in the country once a month,” in an effort to increase voluntary purchases of war savings bonds.

He made the statement to the house ways and means committee as he advocated a continuation of the voluntary savings program, then added quickly:

“We don’t intend to paint the houses yellow or put them behind barbed wire if they don’t buy these bonds.”

Morgenthau reiterated a previous statement to the committee that he wanted to try out the voluntary system at least until July first.

He told a press conference that the president “liked” a description he got from Morgenthau yesterday on the success of the voluntary payroll deduction plan by which union employes of General Motors Corporation are buying bonds.

The secretary explained he was going before congressional committees today to tell the same story, and added:

“I would not be giving this demonstration of the value of voluntary methods unless I felt it was in tune with the president.”

Other administration economic leaders, including Price Administrator Leon Henderson and Federal Reserve Chairman Marriner S. Eccles, recently have advocated that the voluntary method be dropped in favor of compulsory purchases by the public in proportion to their income.

Want Program Increased

These officials also were reported to be asking drastic increases in the pending $7,600,000,000 tax program, but Morgenthau, who is believed to oppose such increases, declined to comment on this aspect today.

On Capitol Hill Randolph Paul, tax adviser to Morgenthau, appeared to congress to eliminate the present 27½ per cent depletion allowance for oil wells and mines in order to bring $117,000,000 in new revenue into the treasury.

Word spread that the administration had discarded the “forced” savings proposal after Morgenthau obtained permission from two General Motors officials, John M. Jerpe and H. W. Anderson, to appear before the house committee.

Desires Voluntary Plan

Committee Chairman Doughton (D-NC) announced only that Morgenthau had requested him to arrange for their appearance but it was learned that they would discuss the corporation’s voluntary savings plan for employes.

In presenting a $7,610,000,000 tax program to the committee on March 3, Morgenthau said that no consideration had been given to a forced savings program and expressed the hope that congress would not enact one.

Doughton discussed the whole tax situation with the president at the White House yesterday and said later that he had “no reason to expect” that the administration would boost its tax recommendations.

Might Present Difficulties

It was reported that Doughton told the president that congress would encounter difficulties in the raising even the $7,610,000,000 without a general sales tax.

The treasury has informed congress that if the pending $7,610,000,000 tax program is approved, tax receipts for the fiscal year of 1934 will amount to $23,487,000,000, leaving 39,800,000,000 to be borrowed in the year starting July 1.

G. Henderson, supervisor of the Missouri department of liquor control. The suspension followed the hearing on charges of Sunday sales of intoxicating liquor.

Talk On Bonds At Kiwanis

College President Speaks On “I Pledge America”

At the regular Kiwanis noon meeting today, Dr. J. C. Miller, president of Christian college, Columbia, spoke on “I Pledge America Week,” dealing with the subject of bonds for war purposes. Observance of this special week will open next Monday.

Dr. Miller explained the method of systematic savings for Uncle Sam, listing three objectives—getting people to set up systematic savings, insuring a regular income of cash for the government for the duration of the war, and avoiding mistakes of the last war.

Perpetuating Plan

The war savings plan now in effect is a perpetuating one, Dr. Miller pointed out, and does not have to be reset for additional drives as was the case of the Liberty loans during World War I.

Pinkney Miller, program chairman for the month, presented T. H. Yount, vice-chairman of the Pettis County War Savings committee, who introduced the speaker, one of 300 talking this week on War Savings throughout Missouri in a campaign to obtain signatures of 2,000,000 citizens who will pledge willingness to purchase War Savings securities at regular intervals for the duration of the war, or as long as they are financially able to do so.

Two Presided

The meeting was opened by the president, George H. Scruton, who with Herbert Schrankler, secretary, and H. U. Campbell, vice-president, led early to attend a district Kiwanis meeting in Columbia. W. R. Courtney, a past president, took the chair and presided over the remainder of the luncheon-session.

Guests were: Steve Souttar, guest of Howard Roberts, and Joe Benson, guest of H. U. Hunt.

Mother And Little Daughter Have Burns

The condition of Mrs. Frank Mittenbuege and her three-year-old daughter Anna Marie, who are in the Bothwell hospital suffering from burns received about 8:30 o’clock Wednesday night, is reported as being good.

Mrs. Mittenbuege received painful burns on her hands and arms when she went to the aid of her little daughter whose dress had ignited while playing near an oil stove at the Mittenbuege home. The child received first degree burns from the fire. It was while smothering the flames that Mrs. Mittenbuege was burned.

The two were taken to the Bothwell hospital where they received treatment.

Cole Camp Sailor Attends Services

Rev. J. R. Summers, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, has received a letter from Rev. M. C. Johns, pastor of the Frankford Avenue Baptist church, Philadelphia, Pa., telling him that one of the Calvary Baptist boys, Samuel Mahnken, of Cole Camp, worshipped in the Philadelphia church on April 1, took communion with them and was entertained in the home of the senior deacon for the remainder of the day, and returned for the evening service.

“He made an excellent impression upon the people and seems to us to be an honest-to-goodness real American boy.”

Mahnken, who is in the navy, is now stationed a few blocks from the church.

Mrs. Roosevelt Would Like To Work In Factory

BOSTON, April 16.—(AP)—If she were a few years younger, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt would like to take a job in a factory to aid the war effort.

She offered the comment after interviewers asked her what girls could do for their country.

“Well,” said the president’s wife, “I ought not to be telling young people what to do; but production is so important that if you have the strength and some skill, it seems to me that’s as useful as anything you could do.”

“If you have special training for something else, of course, that’s different. But if you haven’t you can learn a skill for factory work.”

“If I were young enough, I think I would go to work in a factory.”

Mrs. Roosevelt was here to address the International Student Service.

Half Pound Sugar Per Week Per Person

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(AP)—The government announced today that the nation’s first sugar ration allowance would be half a pound a week per person.

This quota will apply only to the first two weeks of rationing, which is scheduled to begin sometime during the week of May 4-7—the period during which all citizens must register and obtain books of ration stamps.

Under present plans, each ration stamp will be good for two weeks and stamp number one will permit purchase of one pound of sugar, OPA said. The ration allowance might be changed for each two weeks thereafter, depending upon available sugar supplies.

Eight Soldiers See New York Giants Play Cleveland Indians

Corporal Paul Alpert, with the 128th Field Artillery, writes the Democrat another letter, telling of the activities of the Sedalia boys in camp. It follows:

“Camp Blanding, Fla., April 16—

“Hello Again! It looks like a summer resort, it was a summer resort, but our camp now belongs to Uncle Sam and under his guidance, everything is proceeding like a machine in our training program under sunny Florida skies. The camp is located on a large lake, Lake Kingsley, where each outfit has its individual bathing beach. We are eight miles from Starke, Fla., a city of 5,000, 40-miles from the metropolis of Jacksonville and 50 miles from quaint St. Augustine, said to be the oldest town in America.

“We rose Monday morning of this week to find the warm sun beaming down after a light season of rain. Each section of our organization devoted the morning to cleaning our field equipment and arranging the individual section rooms. At noon we were told that eight men would be given complimentary tickets to see the New York Giants play the Cleveland Indians at the Jacksonville Baseball club. Our commanding officer, Capt. Benjamin A. Goodin, put blanks of paper in a hat, eight of which were marked and we proceeded to draw from the hat. The lucky ones were: Sgt. William “Pinky” Pate, Pvt. Robert Bowlin, Alper “Killer” Winebrenner, Olin Miller, Waddell Manning, John “Kate” McFarland, Reginald Fitzgerald, and yours truly. Cleveland won 2-0.

“Tuesday morning we were busy again with the equipment and the cleaning of rifles and brass for a brigade inspection. The inspecting general, together with our own Col. Charles E. Barkshire, inspected us after which we were complimented for a nice inspection. At 5 p. m. we passed in review with the new brigade of which we recently have been made a part.

“Several of us went to Counterintelligence school on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Represented at the school for the Instrument Section were Sgt. Joseph Alpert, Pfc. Waddell Manning and your correspondent. Representing the Signal Detail as radio operators were “Buck” Miller, Maurice Johnson and Harold Anderson. The rest of our boys spent the week on the range going through field exercises.

U. S. Raiders Used Protected Hidden Base

Airmen Bring Men To Australia; Those Behind Are Supplied

By C. YATES MCDANIEL
U. S. ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, April 16.—(AP)—Brig. Gen. Ralph Royce, volunteer leader of the bomber squadron which delivered the United States’ first long distance smash in the Philippines, disclosed today that the raiders used a base hidden in the islands, protected by fighter planes, and provisioned for future use.

Twelve planes of the 13 which for two days wrought destruction and dismay among the enemy at the start of the week ferried passengers on their return trip to Australia—10 crewmen from a fortress bomber lost on the foray and 34 army men and civilians from Bataan, Corregidor and other island points.

Most of the evacuees were airmen, indicating that while the Americans still have the fighting planes in the islands, as Royce said, they have a surfeit of men to fly them.

Royce said that the morale of the men left behind was excellent especially now that they have plenty of food. The American fighter planes cooperated with the Australia-based bombers, shooting down two Japanese planes that tried to attack the bomber squadron.

The hidden field served the 10 medium and three fortress bombers as a forward base on their 4,000-mile round trip attack. The fortress craft lost on the flight was grounded there, having an engine changed, when a Japanese bomb hit destroyed it in flames.

The advance base may figure prominently in future attacks, for the assaults of last Sunday and Monday acclaimed here as only a sample of heavier blows still to be delivered in an effort to turn the tide of battle in the southwest Pacific.

Tides Is Turning

Indeed, Australia’s prime minister, John Curtin, declared today that the Royce exploit showed that the tide of war was turning against Japan.

He added that it was but the first drive into the heart of Japanese military positions and in time would be followed by the operations of vast air fleets.

One hundred ten tons of bombs were dropped on the enemy in Davao, Mindanao and Luzon in the two peril-fraught days in which the bomber force dominated the skies in its theaters of operation. Topping the list of successes were the sinking of four transports and hits on four others, including one probably sunk.

Blow Despite Odds

The chief significance of the raid, however, lay not in the destruction achieved but in the mere fact that an opening blow had been struck despite the terrific odds of distance and Japanese air power in the islands.

In comparison with the still unfolding story of this raid, the continued offensive blows of allied airmen against Japanese bases closer to Australia—such as a pre-dawn attack today on Koe-pang, in Dutch Timor, and a new assault yesterday at Rabaul, New Britain—lacked in appeal to the popular fancy.

It was announced officially that one hit and a near miss were scored on an enemy ship at Rabaul, the center of the enemy’s preparations against Australia. At Koe-pang, the Royal Australian air force dropped high explosives on an airfield, but “other details of the attack have not yet been received,” a communique said.

No Casualties

The Sunday and Monday operations in the Philippines cost the raiding force no casualties and no damage, except for loss of the B-17 fortress craft and many a hole in one of its two mates and one of the ten B-25 medium bombers.

“One man, not a member of our party, was killed in action connected with our flight,” Royce said. “A fellow named Burns jumped in a fighter when he heard the Japanese and started to take off. He got off the runway but the plane burned up. It was a take-off accident only. The Japanese had nothing to do with it.”

So extraordinary was the conduct of the bomber force that the MacArthur command had not enough medals to go round.

Passengers Army Men

Most of the passengers picked up in the Philippines were United States army and air corps officers. Among them was the Filipino ace, Capt. Jesus Villamor, who won the distinguished service cross for his exploits in flying to defend his homeland.

Among the others were the Chinese Lieutenant Colonel Ch. Wang, who was liaison officer with the forces on Bataan, and two newspapermen, Nat Floyd of the Manila Bulletin and New

The War News . . . Streamlined

SAN FRANCISCO, April 16.—(AP)—San Francisco and the bay area had their first daylight alert of the war today as listening posts flashed warnings of the approach of unidentified aircraft.

The alert, sounded at 9:57 a. m. (12:57 EWT) lasted only until 10:12 a. m. when the planes were identified as friendly.

Radio broadcasting stations were ordered off the air.

The alert, which precedes any warning of an air raid alarm, caused no stoppage of work, and went mostly unnoticed by the civilian population. Air raid sirens did not sound.

Sentenced For Not Turning In Tax

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 16.—Commissioner of Internal Revenue Guy T. Helvering announced that Nathan Gottlieb, Ozone Park, N. Y., had been sentenced recently by a United States District Court in Brooklyn, N. Y., to fifteen months in a federal penitentiary for failing to turn over to the Collector of Internal Revenue employees’ tax collected from the employees of two corporations of which Gottlieb had been president. The indictment against Gottlieb charged that he failed to turn over to the government employees’ tax in the aggregate amount of $4,577.00 for taxable periods ending in 1938, 1939, and 1940 and that he failed to file returns as required. In imposing sentence Judge Marcus B. Campbell remarked:

“This man collected money for the government that was owned by the government and appropriated it for his own use. This is a crime. Persons who do such things are not good citizens. I intend to impose a sentence which may act as a deterrent upon others who may contemplate similar violations of law. I wish the word to go forth that those who come here in the future charged with similar offenses will receive even more severe penalties.”

Expect Hitler To Take Over French Fleet At Any Time

General Royce Fools Japs With “Ford”

UNITED STATES HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, April 16.—(AP)—Brig. Gen. Ralph Royce, who led the American bombing raid on the Philippines, disclosed today that he fooled Japanese bombers by fixing up an old de-commissioned B-17 flying fortress on a Philippine landing field.

Four wooden “propellers” were attached to the worthless plane, and new “camouflage” was provided—not to conceal it but to make the Japanese think concealment was intended.

Sure enough, the Japanese came over and bombed it all day, but their 13 twin-engine bombers failed to find Royce’s base.

As souvenirs of the ruse, Royce displayed metal fragments with which Japanese bombs are filled. Several of the pieces of scrap had “Ford” stamped on them.

Thirty Days For Stealing Corn

Pete Wasson, who resides north of Sedalia, arrested about 1 o’clock this morning by Police Officers J. H. Brooks and Clarence Nicholson who suspected him of having stolen corn in his truck, was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail this afternoon. Wasson appeared before Justice of the Peace J. C. Connor, and pleaded guilty to charges of petit larceny.

Wasson, after being taken to police headquarters early this morning, admitted that he had stolen the ten bushels of corn from the farm of Jack Rader, north of Sedalia.

The corn was stolen in the Longwood township and Prosecutor L. J. Harned asked Wasson to waive the Longwood jurisdiction of that township so the case could be filed in the Sedalia township justice court.

May Have Tires In Year And Half

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—(AP)—Civilian motorists can expect new tires in a year and a half or two years, says Paul W. Litchfield, board chairman of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company.

By that time, synthetic rubber plants will be in full operation, he said last night at the Franklin Institute’s annual medal day ceremonies.

The government probably will be able to meet essential military and civilian needs with present sources of supply, he said.

Chest Drive $7000 Short Of Goal

Sedalia’s community chest fund is gradually showing an increase in subscriptions, but it is still more than $7,000 from the minimum goal of $10,800. The total subscriptions up to 2 o’clock this afternoon were $3,694.42 an increase of $806.19 over Wednesday’s total which was $2,888.23.

A number of the downtown teams, soliciting the business houses, have not yet reported to the chest headquarters at the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce offices, but their reports should bring the total up considerably.

U. S. And Vichy Relations Becoming More Strained; Urge Americans To Leave

BERN, Switzerland, April 16.—(AP)—Pierre Laval, advocate of French cooperation with Adolf Hitler, completed the formation of a new French government in Vichy tonight in which he assumed the post of “chief of the government.”

By ROGER D. GREENE
Associated Press War Editor

The Washington-Vichy crisis mounted sharply today amid general expectations that France would proclaim her solidarity with Germany and that Adolf Hitler might soon get his hands on the French fleet.

U. S. consular officials urged all Americans to leave unoccupied France as soon as possible.

Emphasizing the gravity of the situation, President Roosevelt has moved up his cabinet meeting from its accustomed Friday date, and it was expected he would hear a report on developments which have strained relations between France and the United States almost to the breaking point.

In Vichy, the new French “chief of government,” Pierre Laval, said a new Vichy cabinet had been chosen except for two names. A silent crowd of 2,000 Frenchmen watched as Laval’s big black limousine drew up before the government hotel.

Expect Announcement

Vichy’s Ambassador Gaston Henry-Haye had an appointment to meet Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles today, and Washington observers expressed belief that he would deliver official notification of an openly pro-Nazi collaborationist policy by Pierre Laval’s new regime.

Welles has already made it emphatically clear that the United States has nothing but scorn for collaborationists and would consider such a regime unqualified to represent the French people.

Laval himself, now France’s most powerful figure, with the aged Marshal Philippe Petain on a figurehead, returned to Vichy from Paris where he was said to have conferred with Hitler’s agents—presumably receiving the fuhrer’s orders for the future government of France.

Laval Sees Petain

He was immediately received by Petain.

In Washington, senators gloomily forecast that the French fleet—once Europe’s second largest—would soon bolster axis sea power jeopardizing the Anglo-American domination of the North Atlantic supply routes to England and Russia, and also imperiling British control of the Mediterranean.

“Hitler will take the French fleet whenever the time is right,” said Senator Lucas (D-Ill.) member of the senate naval committee. “We can expect direct action any time now.”

According to unofficial estimates, France has approximately 180 warships in various stages of readiness to fight or building, including seven battleships, three aircraft carriers, 17 light and heavy cruisers, 72 destroyers and 81 submarines.

Even if French sailors refused to man the ships, observers said, the fleet might be surrendered to the Germans, to be manned by Nazi crews.

Major Developments

Other major developments: Soviet dispatches reported that Red army shock troops who had smashed through the first line of German defenses around Bryansk, 200 miles south of Moscow, had surged forward and occupied a dozen settlements abandoned by the axis.

Bryansk is a key German base only 60 miles from the border of White Russia.

The Russians said Hitler’s high command was constantly increasing reinforcements for “feeler” attacks against the Red armies, but there was still no sign of the long-befielded German spring offensive.

London military quarters said the Germans would probably not attempt to unleash a full-scale “blitz” assault on the central front until about May 15, when the weather and terrain conditions would be more favorable for mechanized attack.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round
By DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Government sleuths are probing a series of mysterious leaks of important market information from key war agencies.

On several occasions recently certain Wall Street traders have obtained advance tips on important moves to be made by the War Production Board, the Office of Price Administration and the Agriculture Department.

In one instance cotton brokers got wind of an agriculture parity price announcement 45 minutes before it was made public. This announcement was supposed to be absolutely secret until publication. The market operators not only learned about it, but used the information for private profit.

The WPB order banning all non-essential building construction also was tipped off in advance to certain members of the building trade. So, too, was the OPA's action imposing a price ceiling on fats and oils, and allowing an increase in wool prices. Word regarding this move leaked out two days before the order was issued.

Under suspicion for these leaks are certain dollar-a-year men, who, while not directly connected with these matters, were in a position to learn about them and to tip off business friends.

Isolationist Pow-Wow

On the day that Gen. Douglas MacArthur was appointed supreme commander of the embattled Southwest Pacific, two very interesting secret meetings took place in Chicago.

The first was held in the private office of Col. Robert McCormick, publisher of the rabidly isolationist Chicago Tribune. Present in addition to McCormick were his cousin, Capt. Joseph Medill Patterson, publisher of the New York Daily News, and Col. Charles Lindbergh.

The three men were closeted together for several hours. They then went to the Chicago club, where they were joined by Gen. Robert Wood, former head of the America First Committee, now a high officer in the Chicago office of U. S. Army Ordnance.

The four men discussed the war situation, plans relating to this year's crucial congressional elections, Wendell Willkie, and Lindbergh's future plans. Several weeks later he got a job with Henry Ford.

NOTE: While keeping out of the limelight in the last few months Washington's isolationist generalissimo met frequently for strategy pow-wows. Their last get-together was at the Massachusetts avenue mansion of Mrs. Alice Longworth.

Guinea Pig Gas Ration

It hasn't been announced yet, but the state of Maine probably will be used as a guinea pig to test the rationing of gasoline. Frank Bane of the Office of Price Administration recently conferred with the Maine Congressional delegation, and subsequently sent a proposal to Augusta for approval of the governor and executive council.

The proposal would set up gas rationing in Maine on May 1, one month earlier than in other eastern states, to iron the wrinkles out of the system.

Maine was chosen as the guinea pig because of its isolated position. It is the only state which has only one other state contiguous to it—New Hampshire. Thus the problem of bootlegging across state boundaries can be more easily handled—especially since most of the traffic between New Hampshire and Maine follows a single highway, U. S. Route 1, which crosses the line at Portsmouth, N. H., to Kittery, Me.

Petroleum Co-ordinator Ickes said last week that card-rationing might be avoided by cutting down deliveries to service stations. But the Price Administration is proceeding with preparations for rationing.

Nevada's Bunker

One blustery winter night 30 years ago, a small boy stood with his parents and nine brothers and sisters in a farmyard near Las Vegas, Nev., heartbroken, watching their home go up in flames.

Berkeley Bunker was five years old then but the tragic scene is as vivid to him as if it had happened yesterday. All the family had to its name after the last smoldering embers expired was a piano—somehow saved from the fire—and a five dollar bill in Mrs. Bunker's pocketbook.

It took courage to pull through an experience like that, but in Nevada the Bunkers are noted for their courage. That was why Nevada neighbors weren't surprised when young Berkeley, now a United States Senator, took the floor last week and gave RFC Chairman Jesse Jones the most scathing tongue-lashing of his long career.

The Truman committee had also denounced the war contract which Jones gave to Basic Magnesium, Inc. But the 35-year-old Bunker, a member of the Senate for about one year, was the first man in the chamber who dared openly tangle with Jesse Jones, who, next to the president, is the most powerful man in Washington.

Though an unknown rookie to the country at large, Bunker is highly esteemed by his colleagues. He is one of the hardest working men on Capitol Hill. He personally dug up most of the sensational evidence on the Basic Magnesium contract. He has made only a few speeches, but when he does take the floor, the Senate sits up and pays attention. In population, Nevada is the smallest state in the union, but it has a big voice on Capitol Hill in scrappy Berkeley Bunker.

NOTE: Deeply religious, Bunker was a Mormon bishop while serving three terms in the Nevada legislature.

Nurses' Aides Are Ready To Serve

As the shortage of registered nurses becomes more acute with many being called to active front line duty one of the most practical civilian war effort programs is the training of Nurses' Aides. Fourteen local women have completed their 80 hours of training,

Bailey, Mrs. Abe Rosenthal, Mrs. O. M. Clouser, Mrs. George Chambers, Mrs. Mary Palmer, Mrs. A. A. Studebaker, Mrs. R. H. Reed and Mrs. Gordon Potter, superintendent of Bothwell Memorial hospital who capped the Nurses' Aides.

Phil A. Bennett

Our Congressman Says . . .

Feeling better, thank you, is my answer to inquiries that have come as a result of publicity that I was ordered to take some rest from overwork. I found the salty breezes, warm sun and beautiful flowers of historic old Charleston, S. C., quite refreshing. While there we visited the old slave market and talked to Charleston's oldest resident, Elijah Green, 104, a former slave, whom we found at the old slave market. The people of South Carolina are very friendly and some of the cities are enjoying a "boom" by reason of war work and shipbuilding. However, the country itself is very poor and I have never seen so much poverty. Farming is done by barefoot Negroes who generally plow with a half-starved single steer or cow. There is no evidence of farm relief or resettlement or rehabilitation projects in this part of the South where poor Negroes and whites are kept from voting by the poll tax law.

We enjoyed seeing the famous Middleton and Magnolia gardens, comprising 5 acres and 45 acres respectively. Both are internationally famous, romantic, venerable and beautiful beyond description. Each is distinctive and symbolic of "Spring in Dixie"; also 4 miles north of Charleston are the fascinating Cypress Gardens, a water forest of giant cypress trees. Here rare flowers from the Orient, shrubs, and palms have been planted, a variety of gay flowers carpet the shore in contrast to the solemn trees, and from the banks and islands azaleas reflect their flaming colors in the onyx waters in the mysterious silence of the forest. Many of these beautiful flowers will not live through Missouri's harsh winters.

Azalea time in the south brings thousands by special trains, bus tours and private parties. Many colleges and schools send student bodies or classes to visit and study the gardens en masse. For over 25 years the Magnolia Gardens have been owned continuously by the Drayton family and their descendants. Some varieties of the Camellia Japonica were planted in 1784 and living. Great trees form picturesque backgrounds for these gardens. They include the stately pines, flowering magnolias, dreamy and sturdy moss-draped cypress, spreading live oaks. I saw one California Redwood. At Middleton Gardens is a live oak estimated by experts to be more than 900 years old. It measures 35 feet in circumference and at noon casts a shade of over 180 feet. Under it many Carolina Colonial troops were mustered in during the Revolutionary war.

Back to Washington I find the place still crowded. The U. S. Civil Service Commission reports that since war started on December 7, 1941, and up to March 30, 1942, it has hired 90,000 new workers in this one city alone. 24,845 of these are typists, 14,891 stenographers, 85 per cent being women. The executive department, of which the president is head, has 243,403 workers here. The combined total population of the 11 counties of the sixth district as shown in the 1940 census was 288,521. There are now approximately two million federal civilian employees. This is about the size of the U. S. army. No let up in hiring is seen. The war department alone is still adding 1,000 stenographers per week.

Cancer control month is this month, April, as proclaimed by the president. 160,000 lives are taken each year in the United States by this one disease. The proclamation said "Citizens should use every educational means to stamp out this scourge." I am glad to back the president in this worthy movement. The U. S. public health service has prepared a leaflet on cancer, describing its cause, symptoms, prevention, etc. On request I will be glad to send you one of these leaflets.

More monkey business. While the 48 states have been ordered to cut steel used for auto license plates by 90 per cent, Uncle Sam has just issued the largest and heaviest plates in history for use on 143,000 government owned vehicles. These pretty red, white and blue plates will not adorn military cars. Note: Congressmen are among the few federal officials who don't have government paid-for autos and tags.

The Naked Truth. When the Dies committee revealed Maurice Parmelee, $5,600 per year economist with the U. S. board of economic warfare, had written an illustrated book advocating practice of nudism in home, business establishments, industries and offices, I made a dash (purely in the interest of science) for the Library of Congress to get a copy. I found a long waiting list. For your information, however, the book was written in 1931 in a year when the country which had lost its shirt was looking for something which would make nakedness seem to be fun. The cult soon died out, however, because people with funny shapes would not adopt it and the others didn't want to disrobe in damp or cold weather. However, with such crackpots planning for us we may find the taxpayer will have to change his mind. The vice president says we shouldn't mention these matters because they make Hitler laugh. Dies says the best way to make Hitler unhappy is to fire the boondogglers. In the meantime, cuffs disappear from trousers. Looks as if the camel had his nose under the tent. If cuffs are to be amputated to conserve wool, then putting the nation's civilians into shorts will save still more. Thus, in the name of patriotism, we are being eased into G-strings? I guess it's O. K. to suggest this since nudism isn't a military secret. However, maybe I was too hasty in driving the fan dancer off the government payroll. She could show us how to cover up. Guess I'll have to plead guilty to being "an obstruction" to this Nude Deal, or at least that part of it which is stripping the taxpayer rather than the Axis.

Mrs. Lela Tanksley
Mrs. Lela Tanksley, widow of the late Rev. Robert Henry Tanksley, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Schien, 523 West Sixth street, at 11:45 o'clock Wednesday night. She had been in failing health for many months, but ill only two weeks, and seriously so only last week.

With her when she passed away were her five children, her aunt, Mrs. J. R. Smiley and her cousin, Mrs. Robert Kerr, of Mexico.

Mrs. Tanksley, whose maiden name was Lela Bridgford, was born March 27, 1870, a daughter of the late James H. and Susan Deniza Bridgford, in Monroe county, near Mexico. She attended the rural schools of her community, and later Hardin college, Mexico. She was married in that county to Rev. Tanksley, a minister of the Christian denomination, who served as pastor of churches in that area. He passed away in Moberly in 1918, and it was shortly after that, the family moved to Sedalia, which had since been Mrs. Tanksley's home. For the last two years she resided with her daughter, Mrs. Schien.

A member of the First Christian church Mrs. Tanksley took an active interest in its affairs. For many years taught the women's Bible class, and aided in other church organizations until her health would no longer permit her activities.

Surviving are her five children, to whom she was a most devoted and thoughtful mother, Roscoe Tanksley and Robert Homer Tanksley, Wichita, Kas., Mrs. Ernest Sibert Omaha, Neb., Mrs. William Schien, Sedalia, and Mrs. Everett French, Joplin. Also surviving are four grandchildren, Dorothy May, Robert Lawrence and Marilyn Sibert, all of Omaha, and Susan Schien, of Sedalia.

Mrs. Roscoe Tanksley and Mrs. Robert Homer Tanksley, of Wichita, Mr. Sibert, of Omaha, and Mr. French, of Joplin, are among those from a distance to attend the funeral services.

Funeral services will be conducted at the First Christian church at 10:30 o'clock Friday morning with the Reverend A. W. Kokenoff, pastor, officiating.

Downey said he believed that all families who now have more than one automobile, should turn in all extra cars as a patriotic service.

Stock Market Flounders Today

NEW YORK, April 16.—(AP)—Weakness in a few industrial shares blunted an early recovery move in today's stock market and left the list floundering around nine-year lows in the late proceedings.

Efforts to establish a resistance level were supported at the outset by mild rising tendencies in steels and motors. Other groups were a little responsive for a time but their progress was limited by buying apathy. Dealings were sluggish at around 250,000 shares.

While losses were well distributed at the close, actual weakness was confined to a mere handful of key issues. Of these Westinghouse and I. Case exercised the major influence, each dropping to a new low for a year or longer.

Good News For Hog Feeders

The Krey Packing Company of St. Louis, Mo., one of the oldest established packing houses in the country are opening hog buying stations in Sedalia and Marshall, using the Missouri Pacific stockyards at both places.

They will be open and ready to buy hogs Monday, April 20th, and will buy all weights and grades every day, according to George Hess, company representative.

The Krey Company is completing improvements at their St. Louis plant that have cost approximately a million dollars and their killing capacity will be greatly expanded, giving them a capacity of about 4,800 hogs daily. The huge demand for pork products for both home consumption and the government purchasing program has necessitated the increased slaughter of all packers.

The Sedalia office will be in charge of Mr. W. S. Shinn and the Marshall office in charge of George Hess, both thoroughly experienced hog buyers, who have been dealing with the hog feeders for years and understand thorough the hog raisers and packers problems. According to Mr. Hess, they will endeavor to bring them closer together for their mutual advantage.

One of the most important items today is shrinkage enroute which will be eliminated as they will buy and pay for weights at Sedalia and Marshall. There will be no marketing charges whatever, says Mr. Hess, except the hog feeders expense of delivery to either station. The hog feeders in the community will now have their choice of markets and should be of a distinct advantage to every farmer and hog raiser in this territory, Mr. Hess pointed out. Every stockman and stock trucker is invited to drop in and get acquainted and at least have a pleasant visit with the management of the two stockyard's offices.

The Missouri Pacific railroad is repairing the pens and overhauling the scales and building and office building at the Sedalia stockyards which will be completed this week and ready for business Monday.

Addresses At Shops For The Chest Drive

Several Give Talks Urging Liberal Support

One of the most enthusiastic meetings ever held at the local Missouri Pacific shops was held during the noon hour Wednesday in the interest of the Community Chest drive now under way in Sedalia.

A number of talks were made by various speakers and all were inspiring and all present listened very attentively. A number of business men of the city were in the crowd present.

G. T. Callender, superintendent of the shops, presided, and introduced the speakers.

Talks On Chest Drive

The first speaker on the program was the Rev. O. J. Rumpf, who gave a very interesting and inspiring talk on the subject of "Miracles of Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow." Rev. Rumpf used as his subject the life and good work of Jesus Christ and bringing in about the miracle that Jesus performed when he fed the multitude of thousands with the loaves of bread and fish, pointing out the fact of persuading these people to share their food with others who had nothing. Rev. Rumpf stated the purpose of this Community Chest Drive is to move citizens to make it our business to take care of those who are unfortunate and are down and out. He urged all to take part in the drive and show the rest of the world that we are better than any other nation in that we have that "Undying love in our hearts for others."

Mr. Callender introduced William Brown, general chairman of the Drive, who responded with a few facts about the drive, stating it was for the benefit of four organizations, the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Melita Day Nursery and the Salvation Army. Talks also about making this one drive instead of having four separate drives and it is for the "Welfare of your own children as well as others for you to give."

Mr. Callender then called upon Ellsworth Green, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, who gave a short and inspiring talk explaining the handling of the funds collected in the drive and pointing out very interesting facts covering this campaign.

L. L. Studer, storekeeper for the Missouri Pacific at Sedalia, was next on the program and he urged all to give and in doing this will help others.

Mr. Callender then called upon R. J. Fender, president of the Federated Shop Crafts, and who represented the shop employees on the program. Mr. Fender urged all employees to give 100% and make this drive a success. He told of the needs of the unfortunate and as a result of this drive many people would be benefited. He spoke relative to the slogan "Buy a share in America" and said to use the slogan "Buy a bond and buy a share in the Community Chest."

S. O. Rentschler, general locomotive foreman, gave a short interesting talk on the drive.

Address By Judge Hoffman

Mr. Callender then introduced the principal speaker, Judge Dimmitt Hoffman who stated "we are in the midst of another war and what is our attitude to the war?" Judge Hoffman gave one of the best and inspiring talks made from the platform in the boiler shop for sometime and pointed out that morale in this country is low and "we have gotten away from the teaching of Christianity taught to us by our forefathers." Judge Hoffman stated "I would rather live in the U. S. A. under the Stars and Stripes than any other land." He spoke relative to the good the Salvation Army is doing. "The Salvation Army is known as a 'Back Alley' organization, as it will go into any home any where to do some good to help others. He gave a brief history of this organization stating that it was founded back in 1865 in England.

"Someday we are going to stand before a Judge who does not make any mistakes and that judge is 'God Almighty.'"

Mr. Callender closed the meeting with one of his forceful messages stating that we must be aware of the fact that we must conserve material of all kinds in this total war effort. Conserve and re-condition material can be made and applied to use in this war. The material that cannot be used should be sent to the proper people to load out to make war materials. Mr. Callender stated "We have a drive on at the shops to save material and during the past three days have sent 4 cars loads of scrap material to the proper authority for the use in making war materials and we should educate ourselves to save material and help win this war. "We must go to work in every line of work and the safety of this country depends on us." We are going into this Community Chest Drive as Americans and the Missouri Pacific Shops have never failed to do their part in anything undertaken yet and we are not going to fail now. He stated the employees of the shops are outstanding people of this community and it is up to us to do our part.

In closing Mr. Callender, urged all to take part in the drive to start immediately following the closing of this meeting and it is a patriotic duty for every man to do his job well.

American Association Fires Opening Guns

By the Associated Press
Opening salvos were fired today in the American association, a veteran class AA circuit which weathered one world war and planned to carry on in a second one. The association in its 41st year consists of the same eight team which have been members for four decades.

Columbus, winner of the association race, the playoff title and the Little World Series last year, started the year's campaign at Indianapolis. Toledo was scheduled at Louisville, St. Paul at Milwaukee and Minneapolis at Kansas City in the other openers today.

Marshall Up, Bases Loaded, A Home Run

Rookie Makes The Flashiest Debut Of Any In The Majors

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
The rookie who has made probably the flashiest debut in the major leagues this year is Willard Marshall, an unheralded outfielder of the New York Giants.

He bashed a terrific belt into the upper rightfield stands at the Polo Grounds for a home run with the bases loaded to beat the Brooklyn Dodgers 6-4 yesterday. Batted .314 in 1940.

The big, rangy youngster has been in organized baseball only two years—both of them with the Atlanta Crackers of the Southern Association. As a kid fresh out of Wake Forest college, he was something of a sensation, his first season, getting 14 home runs and batting .314 in 1940. Earl Mann, the astute young president of the Crackers, very

"The Gay Falcon" and "West Of Cimarron" Starts Tomorrow At The Fox Theatre For Two Days

An ingenious scheme to defraud insurance companies through fake jewel thefts provides the story basis of "The Gay Falcon" opening tomorrow at the Fox Theatre, which features George Sanders and Wendy Barrie. Miss Barrie has the role of a pretty secretary and Sanders that of a debonair detective whom she persuades to investigate a series of puzzling robberies, to the great annoyance of his fiancée. The surprising and perilous results of the Falcon's part in the affair lead to a gripping climax. Allen Jenkins, Anne Hunter, Edward S. Brophy and Gladys Cooper play important roles. Co-feature "West Of Cimarron" with Three Mesquites, Bob Steele, Tom Tyler and Rufe Davis.

The All-Star Games Dates July 6 and 7

Armed Forces Team Meets The Majors Team At Cleveland

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
NEW YORK, April 16.—(P)—Members of baseball's advisory council went into another huddle today amid enough gold braid to indicate that a game between a major league all-star team and the best players of the nation's armed forces is practically certain.

The game would be played July 7 in Cleveland's municipal stadium, just 24 hours after the annual All-Star game to be in New York.

Both dates, as well as the sites were selected yesterday when the commissioner, Kenesaw M. Landis, President Will Harridge of the American league, and President Ford Frick of the National league, the council members, opened their two day conference.

Both Games At Night
In addition, the council decided that both games should be played at night in order to get as large crowds as possible.

When such a service team game was first advanced months ago, major league officials were inclined to discount its possibilities on the theory that players who had swapped their baseball uniforms for army khaki or navy blue would not have a chance to get in shape.

But with Bob Feller pitching for his naval training station team almost as often as he would in the majors and Hank Greenburg and other ex-major leaguers playing several times a week, it has become apparent an all-star team would be in tip-top condition.

If the council decided against the service game, the Cleveland contest will be a repeat performance of the July 6 outing.

The regular all-star game, originally scheduled for Brooklyn, was shifted to New York's Polo Grounds, which has a seating capacity of 59,000, around 20,000 more than Ebbets Field in Brooklyn.

Expect To Beat $100,000
Ticket prices will be doubled, scaling down from $4.40. The proceeds, expected to surpass $100,000, will go into a fund to furnish baseball equipment to the army and navy camps.

As in the past, the 25-man squads will be selected by the managers in each league, with every club represented.

At Cleveland, where the stadium seats 80,000, regular prices will prevail, but a $1 war savings stamp must be purchased with each ticket. Profits also will go to the ball and bat fund.

A pair of National league teams—the champion Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Giants—have taken the lead in the contribution of cash to the war fund.

In a joint announcement, the two clubs disclosed plans to turn over the entire proceeds of their games May 7 and Aug. 3 to army and navy relief.

High School Athletics In Chaotic Condition

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 16.—(P)—High school athletics "are facing a chaotic condition" because of the war, Executive Director Edmund Wicht of the Pennsylvania interscholastic athletic association declared today.

"The government wants us to expand athletics to help morale and to build up physical fitness, but we can't charter buses to take teams to games," lamented Wicht. "Coaches don't know what kind of scheduled to make when they don't know how they are going to transport their teams."

Classing athletics as amusements state tire rationing officials have instructed bus companies not to charter buses to high school teams.

Aggravating the situation, Mr. Wicht said, is the diminishing coaching staff with many athletic supervisors going into the armed forces.

Radio Class Will Meet Friday Night

The program is designed to help those persons who are interested in radio principles and code deciphering to gain a good groundwork of instruction on the subject for their future use.

George Curnutt is president of the Sedalia Amateur Radio club.

Liberal Increase In Butterfat For The Past Year

Four Cows In Pettis Herds Produce Over 500 Pounds Each

The yearly records of the Pettis County Dairy Herd Improvement Association as reported by Eugene Garvin, tester, to the members of the Association at their annual meeting in the Farm Bureau office on March 30 show a 14 pound increase per cow in the production of butterfat over the association average last year.

Butterfat production for the year ending April 1 was 329 pounds compared to 315 for the previous year. Milk production increased from 6,846 pounds to 7,780 pounds per cow.

Thirteen herds completed the year's test in the year's test in the Pettis County Association with a total of 368 cow years under test.

The high producing herd was that of Petty and Turner. This is the second consecutive year for this herd to rank at the top of the association in butterfat production. Their 22 Holstein-Jerseys produced an average of 417.4 pounds of butterfat and 11,677 pounds of milk per cow.

Generous Production
Ten of the thirteen herds produced an average of over 300 pounds of butterfat per cow. They are:

Owner	Pounds Butterfat
Petty and Turner	417.4
Dow Bros.	400.7
C. G. Ficken	365.3
Glen Monsees	342.7
Bois d'Arc Farm, Inc.	324.3
Hillview Farm	322.8
E. C. Stevens	322.4
Pounds Dairy	307.5
P. S. Read	306.8
Henry Alt	305.3

The association had one cow that produced over 600 pounds of butterfat. Three cows produced over 500 pounds and thirty-nine produced over 400 pounds of butterfat. Forty-seven cows produced over 10,000 pounds of milk.

Over 500 Pounds Butterfat
Owner, Petty and Turner, breed grade Holstein, lbs., milk, 19,715, lbs., butterfat, 610.7.

Owner, Henry Alt, breed milking Shorthorn, lbs., milk, 13,293, lbs., butterfat, 517.9.

Owner, Hillview farm, breed, registered Jersey, lbs., milk, 12,082, lbs., butterfat, 508.4.

Owner, Petty and Turner, breed grade Holstein, lbs., milk, 12,720, lbs., butterfat, 503.6.

Seven of the herds showed increases over last year. These herds and their increases are as follows:

Owner	Average Increase in lb.
Dow Brothers	53.8
Hillview Farm	41.8
P. S. Read	23.5
E. C. Stevens	22.6
Henry Alt	22.1
Olen Monsees	18.6
Pounds Dairy	11.9

These herd increases have been due primarily to improved feeding and management, more extensive use of good pastures, including supplementary pastures so as to give a longer grazing season, and the culling out of low producing cows, coupled with a long time breeding program through the use of better sires.

Ten of the members fed silage and ten fed legume hay. These high quality feeds combined with balanced grain rations and management that supplied an abundance of good water, minerals and comfortable quarters were factors that contributed to increases in production.

In spite of the wet fall which prevented the seeding of small grains the entire association had an average of 203 days pasture per cow. Permanent pastures were supplemented by small grain or second year sweet clover in the spring, and korean lespedeza or sudan grass during the summer and first year sweet clover in the fall.

Through production records 25 low producing cows were sold during the year.

Officers Are Elected
The progress made by the association members are doubly important at this time when there is a need for an increase in dairy products. Dairy farmers are making a real contribution to the defense of our nation by following practices so as to increase the production of their herds.

The officers elected at the annual meeting are:
Sid B. Johnson, President.
C. G. Ficken, Vice President.
Lee Dow, Secretary-Treasurer.
Olen Monsees, Director.
Henry Alt, Director.

Ventilation In Farm Building Is Improved

More Open-Type Structures Built For Live Stock

Within the decade some great improvements in design of ventilation systems for farm buildings have been made, says Circular 219—Ventilation of Animal Shelters—just issued by the University of Missouri College of Agriculture. The efficiency has been greatly increased, the cost of installation reduced, and the whole process simplified.

For barns housing up to 50 cows, only one out-take flue is used instead of the many called for in previous designs. This one stack or flue must be well insulated and should be built as nearly vertical as possible. It can be located at any point in the barn and may even be set outside the barn if desired. An opening through the siding allows air to enter the flue from the barn.

Open Type Sheds

There is a general tendency in Missouri toward more open-type houses with open-front ventilation, buildings for live stock. Poultry and cattle sheds with the south side left open to the sun and air are being used extensively. When the amount of open front is regulated, or in case there is no need to control temperature, this type of building is satisfactory. Three sides are built with tight walls preventing drafts through the building. By making the depth 20 feet or more, the animals or fowls can find a place where the drafts in and out of the south front are not too great.

In many buildings, however, it is desirable to maintain an environment that is more uniform than that furnished by the open shed. Buildings meeting these requirements are built fairly tight on all sides, in order to utilize the heat given off by the animals to maintain a higher temperature. In cold weather, such a barn is sure to be damp unless some provision is made for ventilating it. Many attempts at ventilation have been made in the past. Some have been successful but others have also been rather expensive to install.

leaves out of the water each time so as to allow the sand and grit to sink to the bottom of the pan—Letha O. Knight, University of Missouri, College of Agriculture.

Farm Women Make Cheese

An example of good leadership and of patriotism was shown by Mrs. A. B. Robertson and Miss Anna Louise Wingate of Flat Creek Community when after they had tried a cheese recipe for themselves they invited some of their neighbor women to meet with them for a "cheese making."

Mrs. Robertson said, "after we tried it and were so pleased we just invited in some of the women so they might see how easy it is to make and how good it is."

Since cheese is one of the foods which the nation is trying to increase, it is most patriotic that farm women make as much of their own cheese as possible.

Problems Of Rural Life In The Victory Campaign

All rural as well as urban families might as well prepare to take better care of materials they possess, remodel, substitute, or manage without for some shortages of consumer goods have already developed and others surely will.

Many of these shortages reflect the unprecedented demands of war production upon this nation's mines, farms, factories, and shipping. Thus, our steel production, more than adequate for national needs in stoves, and refrigerators as well as with the tanks, trucks, and other armaments needed. Other shortages result from the shutting off of imports from the Far East since the outbreak of war in the Pacific. For example, approximately 98 percent of the crude rubber used in this country has come from the Far East. Practically all of our tin as well as our supplies of certain oils and spices also come from these lands.

With respect to food we are relatively well off. Our production goals for 1942 call for an output about a fifth greater than in 1935-36—considerably above the all-time high of 1941. Ordinarily this would guarantee more than enough food for everyone. But the needs of our allies are large, and they may become larger, than we now anticipate. Furthermore, some of the goals will be difficult to achieve because of scarcity of labor and limited stocks of machinery, fertilizer, and other supplies needed for production. While we do not anticipate a shortage in total food supplies, there will almost certainly be some changes in the composition of our diets.

Supplies of clothing and other goods will provide the essential of living and many of the comforts—although some comforts and luxuries will be less plentiful than in 1941. We can live better than other warring nations and at the same time, meet the demands outlined by the President's armament program if we use our resources wisely, if we produce more and waste less than in the year just past.

Rationing becomes a means of serving everyone. It is the democratic key to safeguard our real needs.

Missouri USDA War Board Question Box

- Q. What indications are there that farmers will meet the food goals?
A. The Department of Agriculture reported that in January hens laid 17 per cent more eggs than in 1941. At the present time, Missouri AAA Committeemen are conducting a survey to determine whether these goals will be attained. Preliminary reports indicate that goals will be met.
- Q. Are the food goals sufficient in view of the war situation?
A. It will take maximum production of certain foods to supply our Nation's needs. Goals were established to indicate the amount of production needed. These will be adjusted from time to time as the need arises.
- Q. Is the consumer suffering as a result of good farm prices?
A. No. The average factory worker's earnings are about 21 per cent more per week than in 1929. At the same time, consumers are paying 10 per cent less at the grocery store. Is an effort being made to hold food prices at reasonable levels?
- Q. Yes. For example, a ceiling has been put on wholesale prices of pork products. This assures meat dealers prices will not be higher. Butcher shops and retail meat markets have been called upon to prevent prices from rising above mid-March prices.
- Q. What part of the consumer food dollar goes to the farmer?
A. For every dollar the consumer spends for food, the farmer receives 48 cents. In 1913 the farmer's share was 53 cents and in 1917, 60 cents.

Suggestions Are Given On Putting In Victory Gardens

Arrange Crops Carefully

The arrangement of crops in the vegetable area is important from several standpoints. Where the space is limited, some thought should be given to planning the arrangement so as to make the best use of the space available.

Even though the first plantings have been made it is well even now to consult the Missouri Vegetable Planting Calendar and plan the arrangement of the crops which are yet to be planted in the area.

The quick growing crops should be planted on one side of the area and the crops which are to be growing all season, such as tomatoes, parsnips, salsify and eggplant on the other half of the area. By thus arranging the rapid growing crops and the long-season crops, as soon as the early season crops are harvested other crops can follow them and these will be harvested in time to make planting of the fall crops.

By such planning the vegetable growing area can be used to produce much more food than is possible if the plantings are made without any thought as to the time they will occupy the area.

Make Succession Plantings
A great many of the vegetables grown in Missouri, particularly the early rapid growing crops such as lettuce, spinach, peas, mustard, greens, radishes, carrots and beets, and others have a period in their growth when they are much better eating than at any other time.

The period during which many of these vegetables are in their best eating stage is short. For example, leaf lettuce remains in its most delicious eating stage for about ten days, after which it loses its high quality. Therefore, if we are to have our vegetables in their best eating stage over a long period, we must make several plantings of them.

Follow the suggestions in the Missouri Vegetable Planting Calendar with regard to the time and number of succession plantings of the various crops. Also make small plantings of each, thus avoiding waste of seed, labor, and space.

Commercial Fertilizer

Commercial fertilizer should be considered as supplementary to organic matter for growing nutritious vegetables. The amount that should be used will, of course, vary greatly with the soil and the manner in which it has been handled. However, for the average area where vegetables are grown, an application of one pound of a complete commercial fertilizer such as a 4-16-4 for every 20 square feet should give very satisfactory results.

Calcium is another plant food element which is very commonly lacking and this can safely be put on in the form of limestone at the rate of a pound to every 40 square feet.

There are several ways in which commercial fertilizer may be applied. Experiments have shown that more nearly all of the fertilizer is used by the plant if it is applied in bands on each side of the row. These bands should be at least three inches out from the plant and three inches deep. This method of application requires considerably more time and energy, but better use of the fertilizer is obtained.

Another method of applying commercial fertilizer is to apply it in the row before planting the seed. If this method is used extreme care should be used to see that the fertilizer is mixed thoroughly with the soil before the seed is planted to avoid injury to the young seedling when they start to grow.

Still another method of applying the fertilizer is to broadcast

it over the whole area and then work it into the soil. This can still be done on portions of the gardens not planted, if care is taken to work it deeply into the soil. In this method, almost double the amount of fertilizer should be applied as in either of the other methods.

Bush Beans

Bush beans are found in most family vegetable plantings because they are an excellent vegetable, and if properly handled they produce a great deal of food from a small area.

The green varieties such as Stringless Green Pod, Full Measure, and Tender Green are most widely grown and are of very excellent quality.

The wax varieties of bush beans are receiving more attention and families trying them are impressed by their tenderness and excellent quality. The Pencil Pod, Black Wax, Brittle Wax, and the Sure Crop are among the leading wax varieties.

There is enough difference between green and wax varieties so that by growing both a family may alternate them in their menu with the same effect as having two different kinds of vegetables so far as flavor is concerned.

To Establish a Rhubarb Planting
Rhubarb is one of the earliest vegetables available, and is a very popular food. It is a cool season plant and does best in climates somewhat cooler than Missouri, but with proper care it can be successfully grown in this state.

A new planting of rhubarb may be started either from seed or from roots. Plants started from seed, however, do not come true to type and they take an additional year to establish beds.

A bed may also be started by digging up and dividing old crowns cutting them into as many pieces as there are strong buds. Of course another way is to purchase the roots of a desired variety from a good reliable nursery.

The McDonald and Ruby are two of the most recently developed varieties and are outstanding in their quality and red color. The McDonald produces somewhat larger stems than the Ruby. However, with the proper care both varieties will give big yields. Most of the old plantings in the state are either Victoria or Linneaus.

The roots may be planted either in the fall or in the spring. The latter being the most common practice in Missouri. Since a well established and well cared for rhubarb planting should produce from ten to fifteen years, it is well to go to considerable effort in preparing a good fertile soil for the plantings.

Rhubarb makes its best growth in Missouri when partially protected from the direct rays of the sun in the extremely warm part of the season. Planting it on the north side of a picket fence or other structure for partial shade is of advantage to the crop. Of course the planting should be established in a location where it will not be in the way of cultivation of other vegetables.

With the soil from a trench 18 inches wide and at least that deep mix a large quantity of well rotted barnyard manure and at least one pound of 4-16-4 fertilizer or 20% super phosphate and a half pound of limestone to every three feet of trench.

The rhubarb roots should be set about two inches deep, three feet apart in the row and if more than one row is planted, rows should be four feet apart.

Caring For Rhubarb Planting
Even a well established planting of rhubarb should receive, before growth starts in the spring, a covering of one or two inches of

Serious Loss Due Fowl Pox Among Flocks

Egg Income Is Cut Sharply By The Disease

Fowl pox or chicken pox, as it is commonly called, has caused more serious losses this past winter than at any time in previous years. An outbreak of this disease may be likened to a poisonous gas attack because it strikes without warning and the after effects are quite serious as the mustard gas of World War I proved to be for so many soldiers who experienced it.

When a flock is infected the losses extend far beyond the immediate, and sometimes extended, drop in egg production that results.

In one affected flock this past winter egg income dropped from $9.00 per day to less than enough to pay feed costs. This situation persisted for 100 days so, according to the calculations of this producer, the outbreaks cost $900, in gross income, plus the hens and pullets that were lost. In another flock, the normal net average of $175.00 to less than enough to pay feed costs, and the flock recovered enough to just pay this cost in January.

These losses are not unusual, but they are doubly significant because the pox outbreaks could have been prevented at a vaccination cost of less than $10.00 for both flocks.

Fowl pox has been a serious disease in some parts of Missouri for the past 12 or 15 years. It was formerly localized as a disease problem to counties in southern Missouri, principally along the Arkansas line. At the present time the disease is quite as prevalent in the most northern of Missouri counties as it was 12 years ago in the southern part of the state.

No flock is safe from an outbreak unless it has become immune. Producers who have never experienced this trouble may expect trouble any year, and the well rotted barnyard manure and a pound of 4-16-4 or similar analysis fertilizer or 20% super phosphate and a half pound of limestone to every three feet of row. These fertilizers should be thoroughly mixed with the soil before being careful not to injure the crowns of the rhubarb plants in the process.

If the bed has been planted at least two years the pulling season should be determined by the vigor of growth made by the stalks. The third year after the establishment of the bed should be the first that any rhubarb is pulled, and the length of time it is used that year should not be over six or eight weeks unless the stalks are extremely vigorous and well developed.

After the bed has been well established, the pulling season should not exceed ten weeks and this should be confined to the spring and early summer. In harvesting the stalks they should be pulled from the plant and never cut off.

At the end of the pulling season it is well to fertilize around the plants as was done in the spring, allowing the rhubarb to grow and produce plant food which will be stored in the roots to be used in developing next year's stalks.

losses from one attack will pay vaccination costs for a lifetime of poultry raising.

It is anticipated that more trouble will be experienced this year for two reasons. First, because the disease was so much more prevalent this past fall and winter, and second, because the increased use of secondhand feed sacks can contribute to the spread of the fowl pox virus.

Symptoms of the Disease

Birds that are affected with fowl pox may have the disease in three typical forms. They are as follows:

1. Raised, yellow or brown scabs on comb, face, and wattle.
2. Grayish-yellow membrane, known as cankers, found in the corners of the mouth, throat or windpipe.
3. A discharge from the eyes, nostrils, and cleft of palate.

Diseases that are frequently confused with fowl pox are common colds and roup, commonly called swell head.

When troubles with colds or roup are commonly experienced with pullet flocks under good housing conditions, it may be reasonably assumed that fowl pox may be the real cause of trouble. This is particularly true when trouble is largely confined to the pullet flock each year.

Control Is Simple

Control of fowl pox is simple and easy to accomplish, and costs approximately one cent per bird. The following are important facts:

1. Healthy pullets and cockerels retined for breeding purposes should be vaccinated when they are between the ages of 8 and 12 weeks. Earlier or later vaccination is to be avoided. Vaccination at this age, with chicken pox virus vaccine, produces lifetime immunity.

Adult flocks that have had the disease are immune for life.

2. When young pullets are vaccinated as an insurance measure on farms where the disease has not appeared, it is also necessary to vaccinate the laying flock. This requires two distinct operations. The hens should be vaccinated with pigeon pox virus which affects egg production very little and produces a mild reaction and only temporary immunity. The pullets should be vaccinated with the fowl pox vaccine at the same time. Then, during the period of general molt, or during October, the old hens carried over pullets should be vaccinated with fowl pox virus vaccine for permanent immunization.

Full Details From County Agent

In view of the wide-spread nature of the disease any producer who wants to get full returns from the labor and money invested in poultry raising cannot afford to risk an escape from a pox infection. Full details may be obtained from your county agent, who has a new circular—"Control of Fowl Pox", No. 445—available for distribution.

Man-Sized Lunch

Through the facilities of the Surplus Marketing Administration nearly 5,000,000 children in 67,000 schools were served free lunches during the last fiscal year.

Soy Beans Profitable

U. S. farmers received about $112,000,000 in cash from the sale of soybeans in 1941. This compares with a figure of $51,000,000 in 1939.

Need Greater Supply Of Castor Beans

Farmers Asked To Increase Their 1942 Acreage

Greatly increased supplies of castor beans are needed in this country to replace Tung oil which was formerly imported, the need probably running to 450 million pounds this year, point out the field crops men of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture. To meet 1943 and subsequent needs, American farmers are asked to increase the seed in 1942 for a commercial acreage in 1943 that will insure adequate supplies.

Since Missouri formerly grew a substantial share of the castor beans produced in this country, it is expected that the state will respond now to the need for this crop. Castor beans may be grown on any soil adapt to standard Missouri crops, but they thrive best on well drained soils of medium fertility. Land that is poorly drained or subject to overflow is not satisfactory as a rule. Extremely rich, moist soils will produce a rank vegetable growth, and under such conditions the yield of seed is likely to be disappointing and harvesting will be proportionately difficult.

Castor beans are comparatively drought resistant and probably will do well on land that is considered rather low in fertility for a good crop of corn. They are also comparatively resistant to damage by insects and diseases. Castor beans are not a member of the bean family and are not a legume, hence they do not add nitrogen to the soil.

The castor bean field should be separated from any other castor beans by at least one-half mile, even those that may be grown about the house as ornamentals. The plants cross-fertilize very readily, and this is very destructive to yield and quality in the commercial crop. Growers are advised to furnish nearby householders a few of their seed, if castor beans are to be grown as ornamentals, to eliminate the danger of crossing. Since the crop grown in 1942 is intended for seed increase for planting the 1943 crop, it is extremely important to avoid all chances for crossing.

Suggestions On Saving Of Sugar

To conserve sugar, the home economists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture suggest making fewer pies, cakes and sugar-rich desserts; using more fruits—fresh, canned, and dried; gradually reducing the quantity of sugar in beverages, especially if the usual quantity leaves some undissolved in the bottom of the cup; eating cereals with little or no sugar, to savor their distinctive flavors; serving any very sweet foods, like preserves, last—never before foods that are less sweet, because this contrast makes one want extra sugar.

Mrs. Thurn Picks A Sweet Subject Telling How To Accept Your Sugar Ration Without Crumbling And Have A Good Pie, Too

Dear Friends in Sedalia:

It strikes me that there has been a lot of unnecessary wailing and gnashing of teeth about sugar rationing. People who have been putting two and three heaping teaspoons of sugar into their tea and coffee have been loudest in calling "Wolf."

Fruit desserts at one meal follow out the golden rule for health so that only one menu requires a sweet course. If there are children in the family, plan this at the midday meal.

It is all very well to follow the White House example and serve fruit salads frequently for dessert, but there comes a day when the man in the family balks, puts his foot down and says firmly, "I want pie." Actually, a fruit pie is just as logical and as patriotic as fruit salad. Sugar restrictions need not prevent the pie-loving male from enjoying his favorite dessert. If you have not explored the wide range of fruit pies and the various possibilities of sweetening them with little or no sugar, it is high time you went adventuring.

As a matter-of-fact, lavish cooks have been inclined to oversweeten pies and tarts, rather than depending on the flaky pastry for flavor accent. If your pastry is made properly, in accurate Cooking School style, using pure ingredients, your pie is bound to be a success, even though it "seems" on sugar. Therefore, let your first thought be for the pastry.

For sweetening, rounding out the available sugar, there are honey, molasses, excellent syrups, dried fruits and the new 1942 run of maple syrup, which the government has been encouraging maple grove owners to produce in larger quantities than ever before. If you have never tasted maple syrup pie, nutmeg-flavored, and baked between two delicate crusts you can anticipate a real sweet-tooth delight.

The English housewife gets only half a pound of dried fruit—raisins or dates—each month and she is careful to sweeten her apple pie or rice pudding with these instead of sugar. At the beginning of the war, syrups were rationed in England, but for the last few months they have been included in the jam ration which allows each person one pound of jam, jelly, marmalade, mince meat, syrup or sweet spreads a month. Honey is still unrestricted in England.

One to two tablespoons of marmalade or jam will add flavor and sweetness to many types of fruit pies; they serve also as a topping for pudding and go into baked fruit.

After the national pie-baking contest, which is a feature each February of the annual celebration of National Cherry Week, government food experts who had been diligently sampling declared that the flavor of cherry pies had been tremendously improved by trimming down on sugar with extra butter added in the filling. Less sugar also means a less "runny" pie.

Sour cherry pie takes to sweetening with honey. The result is a smooth delicious filling. The proportion is three-fourths cup of honey to three cups sour cherries, drained. See recipe at the close of this article. Coconut cream pie calls for one-half cup honey.

Raisin pie, flavored with grated rind and lemon juice, is sweetened with three-fourths cup honey. Another method for raisin pie calls for one-fourth cup granulated sugar and one-half cup molasses or syrup. This pie is especially popular with the lattice pastry strips over the top.

There are many ways with old-fashioned apple pie, baked between two crusts. Add some raisins, reducing the usual measure of Roll a sheaf of cooked asparagus in biscuit dough and bake in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) for an individual serving at your first party luncheon this spring. Garnish the plate with a salad of sliced hard cooked eggs and pour a generous spoonful of nippy cheese sauce over the entree.

Cut circles from slices of enriched bread and pour creamed asparagus over them when the children come home for their school lunch. Have a pitcher of milk and a basket of toast on the table for extra servings. Active youngsters will relish this combination.

WIENIE BISCUITS

OLD-FASHIONED fluffy biscuits and plump frankfurts, more popularly called wienies, each an American institution by itself, make this new biscuit variation.

Plump pieces of wieners are mixed with a drop biscuit batter, spooned into muffin pans, and popped into the oven to make a salad accompaniment that has a special springtime zip.

Now that the asparagus season is in full swing, biscuits such as these are excellent with a casserole of asparagus au gratin, or with thick creamed asparagus soup. The popular cheese soufflé tastes better than ever when served with Wienie Biscuits.

For a delectable variation, spread the Wienie Biscuit batter

Margarine Means "Pearl"
Margarine is a name derived from the Greek word for "pearl," since crystals of the substance were of pearly luster.

Enriched flour costs a little more than plain flour. But the difference is so small that a whole year's supply of enriched flour for one person costs about 25 cents more than flour without all the health-promoting B-vitamins and iron.

Chicken Increase
The new food production goals for the U. S. in 1942 call for 644,000,000 chickens, about 5 for each person in this country.

Food Values That Will Help You Stay Within Your Budget

Florida Limes
Florida is the only state in the United States which produces limes on a commercial scale.

Butter Production
Minnesota leads all other states in the production of creamery butter.

Recipe Of The Week

With spring at hand, frozen desserts come into their own. Any meal is a gala meal with the addition of America's favorite dessert—ice cream or frozen pudding. Here's one that's simple, and won't cut into your sugar budget. It's called:

Apricot Mallobet

1/4 pound dried apricots
2 cups water
1/4 cup orange juice
18 marshmallows
2 egg whites
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
Wash apricots and soak in water overnight. Simmer until tender in same water, drain and press through a strainer. This should yield 3/4 cup pulp and 1 cup juice. Mix apricot juice and orange juice, and marshmallows and heat over hot water until marshmallows are half melted, folding over and over. Remove from heat and continue folding until mixture is smooth and spongy. Add apricot pulp. Beat egg whites and salt until stiff but not dry and beat in sugar. Fold into apricot mixture, pour into freezing tray of refrigerator and freeze. Stir when half frozen and freeze until firm. Serves 6 to 8.

Delicious hot rolls made from enriched flour served with asparagus au gratin make a twosome that sings of spring.

Russian singer Tamara is fond of Zakuski—dainty appetizers.

Adding vitamins and materials does not change the calorie, or fuel value, of flour. Enriched flour adds extra values only in the form of minerals and extra vitamins.

Enriched bread and milk make a sound foundation for a good dietary. To this star-spangled pair add eggs, vegetables, fruit and meats for victory vigor and vitality.

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

FROM an increasing number of sources comes confirmation that the kitchen front is vital to our wartime effort. Latest factory reports show that wartime-installed "snack bars" to feed workers in-between meals give workers quick energy, increases output, as well as helps hold down accident rates. The "snack bars" in factories have been placed on a scientific basis, and are designed to give the energy which might be missed in regular meals.

But in the home, the same quick energy for daily routines can be given the family with proper selection of foods that make up the family meals.

Nutritious, properly balanced meals aren't hard to arrange at this time of the year, when markets overflow with flawless viands. Beef and lamb continue to be the best meat buys this week. Small size roasting chickens are a special in the East.

Vegetables continue to show lower price tickets. Price drops are recorded for asparagus, green beans, brussels sprouts, iceberg and Boston lettuce, mushrooms.

Based on the best buys of the current week, here are three balanced menus at different price levels prepared by Marion Rouse Budd, of the A and P Kitchen.

Licorice From Pea Plant

Licorice is obtained from the roots of the licorice plant, a member of the pea family. The root is first macerated in water, and then evaporated to a suitable consistency.

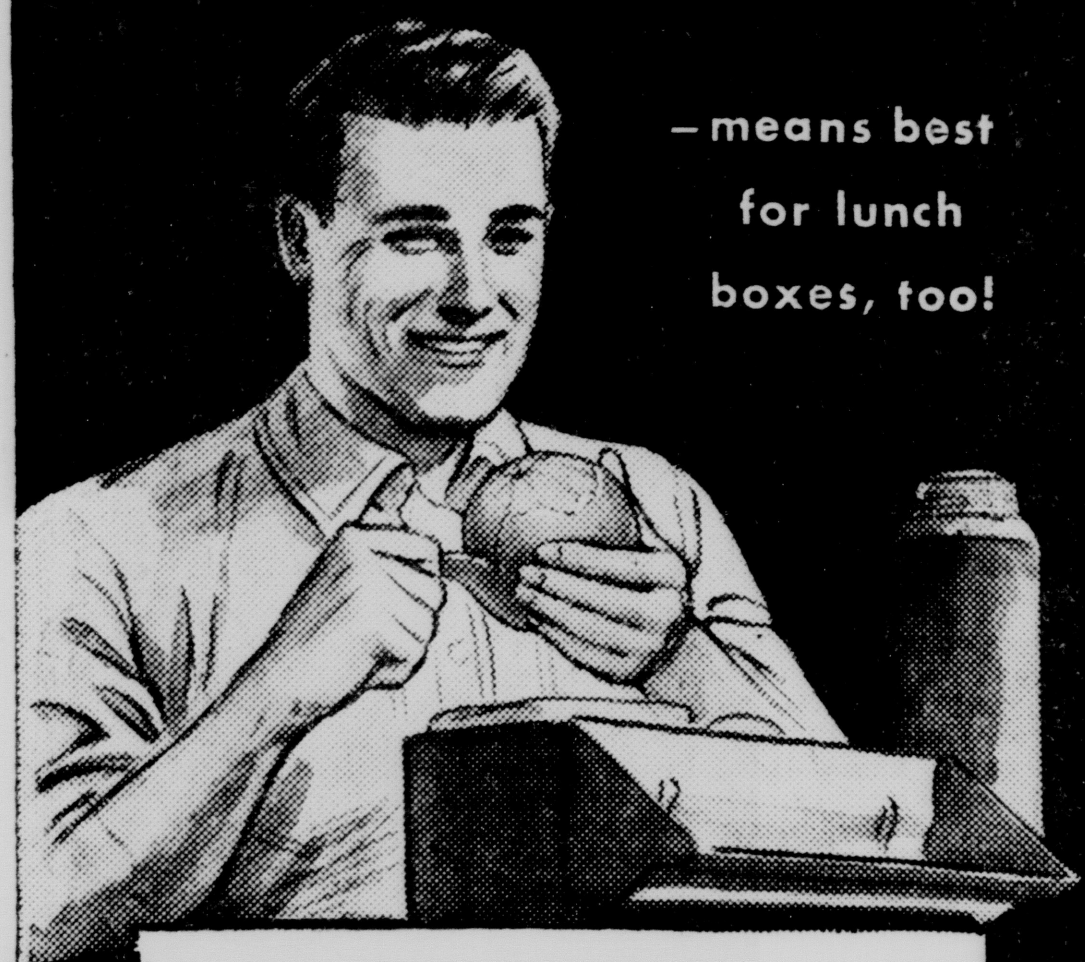

Shark-Oil For Cod

Shark-liver oil is being used increasingly in place of other fish oils—especially cod-liver oil, which was formerly supplied to us in large quantities by Norway.

Asparagus Tips

Try rolling several spears of cooked asparagus in slices of enriched bread and broil until luscious brown. Serve with crisp bacon stripes and stuffed olives some Sunday evening this spring.

SERIAL STORY

FRANTIC WEEKEND

BY EDMUND FANCOTT

COPYRIGHT 1942
NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Returning on a train to Montreal from a week-end vacation, Myra Mack, a plain, likeable young stenographer, strikes up conversation with a Canadian lieutenant. Their introduction is mutual admiration of a pretty girl on the station platform.

CHAPTER II

"I KNOW where I've seen you!" said the soldier suddenly, snapping his fingers as his memory obeyed him. "You're the girl Ferdy Lorton painted, against a background of Laurentian hills."

Myra stared at him. "Don't tell me you know Ferdy?"

"I do. He's a great friend of mine."

Myra nodded. "It doesn't surprise me. He's a great friend of most every man in Montreal."

"I'd better introduce myself. Nigel Monkhouse, lieutenant, Royal Canadian Artillery. I saw your picture first in the Spring Exhibition."

"Luckily most of my friends didn't recognize me," said Myra. "I'd never have lived it down. He had a crazy idea that there was some relation between all those bumps and hills in the Laurentians and my face." Myra laughed. "Maybe he was right at that."

"Ferdy thinks the world of you."

"In a purely platonic way, of course," said Myra. "Now if you really want to meet that rhapsody in blue, he is the man to help you. He not only knows every man in town, but sooner or later he seems to meet all the prettiest girls."

Lieutenant Nigel Monkhouse puffed at his cigarette. He nodded slowly. "It gets me. I don't know how he does it. With that sandy hair and that grin of his, I suppose. He's not tall, he's not dark, he's not even handsome, he looks at times as though he slept out all night on the tiles, and yet he always seems to have a pretty girl or two in love with him. There should be hope for me."

He said it half humorously but Myra took him up.

"I doubt it," she said. "You're a nice enough boy, but you've got no nerve. The ones that go to me like you did are always the ones that would run a mile before speaking to a girl like Blue Hat on the station."

Nigel Monkhouse blushed and grinned. "Well there's something so comfortable about you . . . no nonsense and all that sort of thing."

Myra shook her head without the flicker of a smile on her face. "No. That's not it. I know your type. You look at a pretty face and fall for it and it frightens you so much you rush right into the arms of a motherly sort to tell her all about it. But that's the way it goes. You pay for your weaknesses in this world. Here we are at Montreal West and you could have been sitting with the redhead all this while in an aura of ecstasy, instead of with a deadpan like mine. That is if you'd had enough nerve."

There the incident might have ended. The conversation made the rest of the journey to Montreal go very quickly. Myra said a quick farewell to Lieutenant Monkhouse on the station platform and made her way to St. James Street and the office.

THE offices of Consolidated Steel were even more busy than usual with war work and Myra was soon plunged into the Monday thick of it. She was secretary to Mr. Macallum and the more his work grew the more hers increased. By eleven o'clock she had forgotten about the girl at the station and the shy young officer in the train. In fact she had forgotten all about the week-end by noon and it seemed as though she had never done anything but work.

In the outer office Myra saw Miss Blue Hat at a desk and crossed to her. "I saw you on the platform at Lakeside this morning."

But two interesting things intruded into the busy morning. Her young sister telephoned to say that her brother had arrived home suddenly from England. That was important news. He was Myra's favorite brother and had been overseas with the First Canadian Division since the first sailing; his return was unexpected. But apparently he had been commissioned in England and was one of a number of officers sent back for posting to the Third Division.

The other thing that happened was not so important. "Miss Mack!" Mr. Macallum's voice startled her from a steep stack of papers she was sorting. "I want you to slip over to Ransom's, the stockbroker! I want you to hand this to him personally. It is very important and I want it to get to him quickly."

He handed her a bulky envelope and in a few minutes she was out in St. James Street wondering how so many people managed to find time to walk about while she was spending all her days at a desk. It was quiet in the stockbroker's office and she was told to go straight through to Mr. Ransom's office. As she reached the door it opened and she bumped right into the girl who was coming out. She gasped and the girl gasped, then the girl apologized but Myra only stared. Miss Blue Hat—the girl on the station platform.

MYRA went past her and delivered her envelope. Mr. Ransom asked her to wait outside for a return envelope which would be ready in a minute. In the outer office she saw the girl at a desk and crossed to her. "Sorry I banged into you so hard just now."

The girl smiled and Myra noticed that her eyes were a clear blue green. "That's all right. It was my fault."

Myra shook her head. "I saw you on the platform at Lakeside this morning."

"I remember," said the girl. "You were with that tall officer."

"Not exactly," said Myra. "but it seemed to work out that way because we were talking of you."

The girl blushed and Myra put that down to the credit side. She continued. "He thought you were the answer to a soldier's dream, but I decided you weren't interested in men."

"Why not?" echoed Myra slowly. "Well, if you ask me, I should say you make up to compete with women rather than to interest men."

A smile flickered for a moment on the girl's face. "You might explain."

"Simple," said Myra. "Look at your lips and your eyes. If you had a face like mine you'd need twice as much as that, but with a face like yours you need about a quarter of it."

There was no time to say any more because a boy had brought an envelope to Myra who smiled a farewell to the girl and moved to the door.

The girl watched her go with a faint smile playing about her lips. Then Mr. Ransom came out of his office and crossed to her.

"Well, Fay," he said to his daughter, "what does an office feel like after the hectic life?"

"Not so bad," she smiled up at him. "One meets as many strange people here as anywhere else. Who was that girl who came in just now?"

"That girl? Oh, John Macallum's secretary. He thinks the world of her. I could use a girl like that myself."

"Won't I do?"

"Temporarily, yes, my dear. Until we get some real work to do."

Mind Your Manners

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. Is it a good idea to talk about the cost of food at the dinner table?

2. Is it good manners to say "Is it very expensive?" when admiring a friend's new possession?

3. When a man is presented with a bill in a restaurant should his wife lean over to see what it amounts to?

4. If a girl does not want her date to spend the money necessary to eat at an expensive restaurant should she say, "Oh, that's too expensive" or suggest another place?

5. Is it gracious to describe another person's child as being unattractive?

What would you do if—

You say something in anger and

In Texas has increased its capacity to 52,000 tons. It will process Bolivian tin ore, as well as a large supply of concentrates from Malaya and the Netherlands Indies received before hostilities there began.

About 400,000 workers are now employed in the aircraft industry, and this number will increase to more than 2,000,000 next year. Dollar output will jump from $1,500,000,000 to nearly nine billions.

Plentiful supplies of essential canned fruits, vegetables, fish, milk, and other necessary foods will be available despite reduction in use of tin cans. Luxury and specialty items, pet foods and foods which do not need to be canned will have to find other kinds of packages.

Employers have been given permission by the Army and Navy to hire more than 99 per cent of the many thousands of unutilized workers they sought to employ on secret war production.

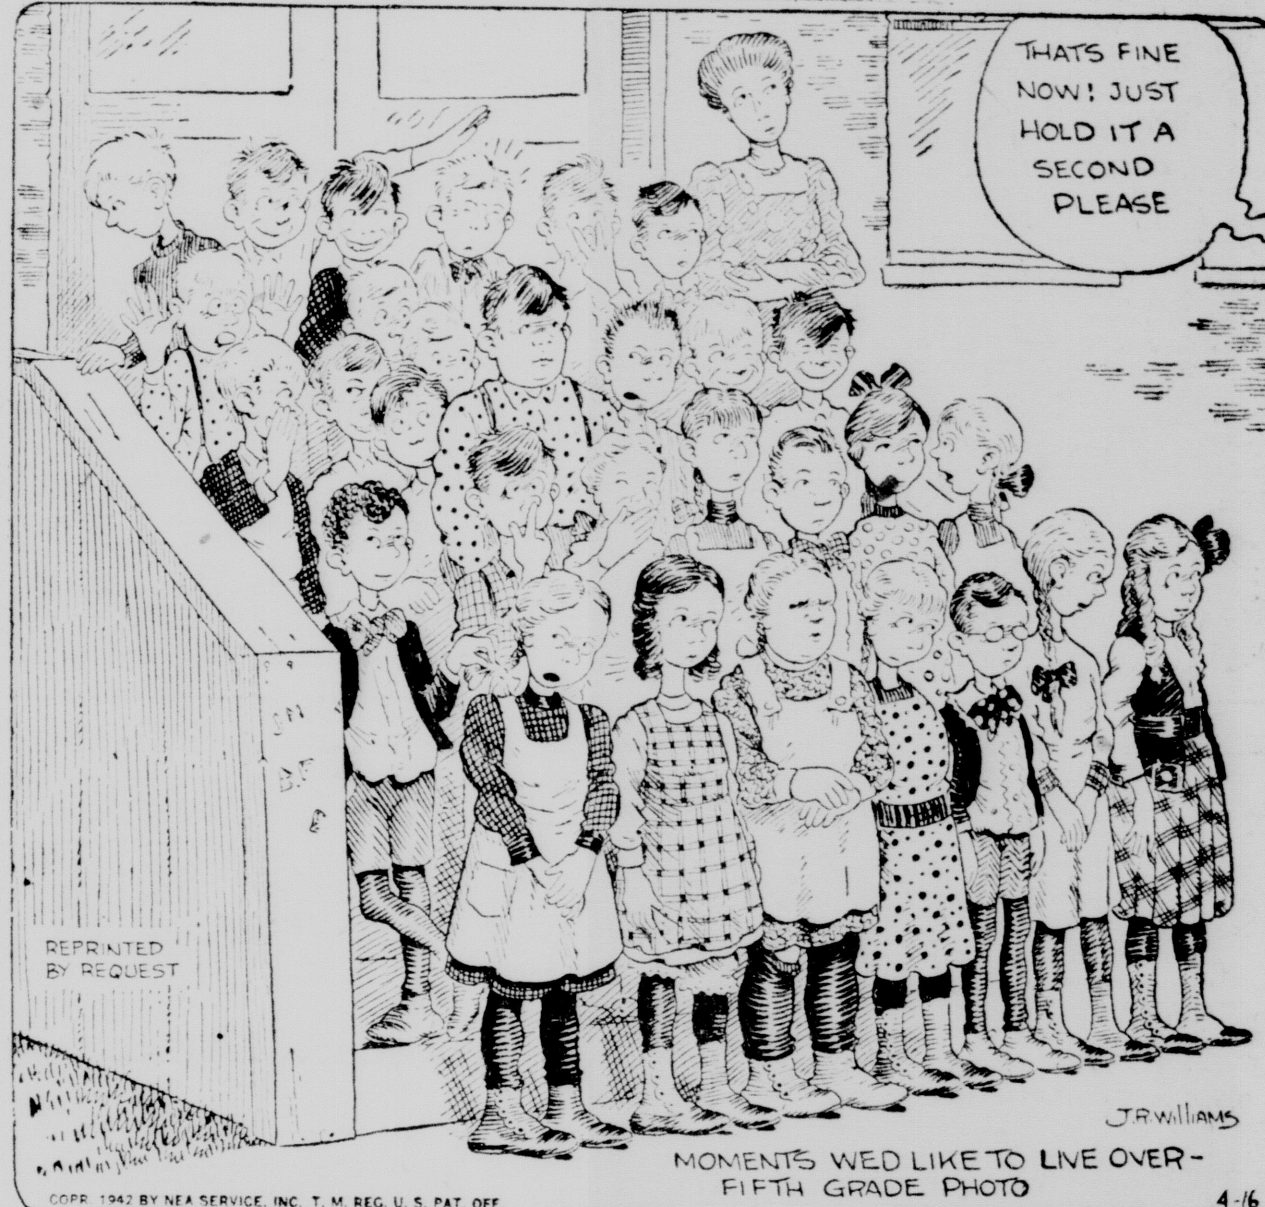

Reduction in the number of patterns and strength of pattern colors in print cloth has been ordered. Most summer dress materials, draperies and slip covers are affected.

In Powerful Aerial Attack On War Plants

RAF, Raids Leave Vast Fires—Nazis Bomb A Town

By BLAKE SULLIVAN

LONDON, April 16—(P)—Carrying forward a powerful aerial offensive that had scarcely been interrupted for 36 hours, great squadrons of British bombers and fighters assaulted Nazi-occupied France by sunlight and darkness Wednesday to top off Tuesday night's raids which left vast fires leaping in the war plants of Germany's Ruhr valley.

Heavy explosions thundered across the channel tonight from the area about Calais—an area raided all day, along with Boulogne, the Cherbourg docks and an enemy airbase. The explosions came from the positions of new Nazi fortifications under urgent preparation by forced labor.

Cannon Fire Heard

Then, when the bombers returned tonight, bursts of cannon fire could be heard high in the sky over the downs behind Folkstone.

Last night's raids on the Ruhr, the sixth for that section in the last 10 nights, here described by the air ministry in such terms as to suggest that they were among the most damaging yet delivered in the campaign to smash the war equipment for many divisions of Nazi troops before it could leave the factories for the Russian front.

Eleven British bombers were lost overnight—a considerable loss but one which an informed source called not at all alarming in view of the size of the total raiding force. Some fires set off in Ruhr arms plants still were burning today.

The RAF struck not alone at Germany and occupied France, far to the north, a German supply ship was left sinking in a Norwegian fjord after an attack by a Hudson bomber.

Members In Check On Health

The Bowling Green Home Economic Extension club is carrying out one of the suggestions of the state standard of achievement, which is often unused. It is that of a health examination for each club member. Club groups often think it is not necessary or costs too much or would be of little use or would be hard to manage to have health clinics for themselves, but this club has proved to themselves it can be done successfully.

Last October the club president, Mrs. P. A. Carey appointed a committee of Mrs. Edna Dehaven and Miss Flossie Ferguson to visit local physicians and see which of them care to cooperate on the club's plan. Five of the physicians agreed so the committee reported to the club and those of the members interested went to whichever doctor they desired for a complete physical examination.

Results have been worthwhile. For example, one lady found she had high blood pressure. She was not aware of that fact, but by finding it at an early stage she and the physicians have been able to bring it down to normal by careful living habits.

Some of the group found themselves in perfect health, while others found ailments of varying degrees.

One of the club members said, "I feel it was worth our efforts if for only that one member. Had we not done this as a group activity she probably would not have gone to a physician until she became uncomfortably ill."

The club is striving for 100 per cent of the members to have this examination.

Plan Women In Shore Duty

Navy Moves To Have Feminine Auxiliary Of Own

By ALEX H. SINGLETON

WASHINGTON, April 16—(P)—Just a step behind the army but just as enthusiastic over the value of women in war, the navy moved Wednesday toward establishing a feminine auxiliary reserve of its own and found hearty support in the house naval committee.

In little more time than it would take to dance the Sailor's Hornpipe, the committee approved unanimously a measure to create a women's reserve of unlimited size to take over many shore duties now handled by men and thus release them for sea-going service.

The action came after Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, chief of the navy bureau of navigation, told the committee that the measure was designed to "alleviate shortages of sea-going men which promises to become acute as the ship expansion program develops."

The only argument developed over the question of how old the women must be to enlist. The committee settled on 20 years after Rep. Shannon (D-Mo) protested that it would be "wrong" to admit them any younger.

"That's a good healthy age," commented Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.).

Behind Lines Duties

The house already has passed a bill establishing a women's army auxiliary reserve of volunteers to take over many of the soldiers' behind-the-lines duties. That measure still is pending in the senate.

Jacobs told the committee that the women would prove valuable in navy communications jobs, such as coding and decoding and photographic work. He said, too, that they would be used in laboratory work in handling confidential secretarial work.

And he added:

"I foresee that before this war

New Plumbing Stocks Frozen

WASHINGTON, April 16—(P)—The war production board Wednesday froze all stocks of new plumbing and heating equipment, but excluded retail sales of $5 or less, or any sale made on a military priority rating.

Acting to prevent dissipation of equipment needed in defense housing and military construction, WPB prohibited the sale or delivery after 12:01 a. m. eastern war time, tomorrow of any fixtures, fittings, pipe furnaces, oil burners, coal stokers and a wide range of other equipment for non-essential purposes.

In an earlier order vitally affecting the plumbing and heating industry, the board prohibited production of oil burners, and coal stokers for residential use after May 31.

The freeze order did not cover used plumbing and heating equipment, tools used for installation and repair of houses, sprinklers and other devices ordinarily attached to outdoor faucets.

He was said to be now at Adolf Hitler's headquarters on the Russian front, but leaving immediately for Paris. His appointment was interpreted by the Mail as proof of Hitler's anxiety over a possible allied invasion of France.

The pay of the sailorettes would match that of their brother gobs, grade for grade. While the measure sets no limit on the rank they could achieve, Jacobs said the navy contemplated a top grade of lieutenant commander for the women.
